Idaho: When Size and Space Matter

What:

A state typically referred to as a flyover has the attributes hidden within its isolated landscape to lead the developing UAS industry. From being home to the nation's second largest non-DoD UAS test site to the deployment of unmanned aircraft systems for precision agriculture - join a conversation with state government and business partners about why Idaho represents the future for the emerging UAS industry.

When:

Wednesday, August 14
2:00 p.m. – 3:00 p.m. (Eastern time)

Where:

Salon B (in the AUVSI press center, across from registration)

Participants:

- Jeff Sayer, Director, Idaho Department of Commerce
- Derek Wadsworth, Unmanned Group Lead, Idaho National Laboratory
- Steve Edgar, President and CEO, ADAVSO
- Brad Alcorn, Biologist, Idaho Power
- Mike Pape, Division Administrator, Idaho Division of Aeronautics
- Dave Holloway, Director, Empire Airlines
